WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

Washington, April 18, 1908.

A most interesting and animated party of visitors are in Washington, this week, guests of the Asahi Shimbun, and a representative of that newspaper accompanies them. The group is making a tour of the world, sightseeing, gathering information, and making observations inspired with the ambition to aid in making Japan one of the world's great powers and with a desire to contribute to the general welfare of the nation. There are about seventy in the party, representing the scientific, commercial and financial life of Japan, including three dainty little women, wives of members of the delegation but of these three only one Mme. Nomura, wore her native garb with straw sandals and no head covering. With the exception of the foreign sounding names and their yellow pevil complexions there was nothing to indicate that the tourists were not of this country. Their attire is European and their traveling appurtenances of the most up-to-date design and of the best material, bearing in plain English letters the names of their owners. The visitors were received by the President at the White House and after "doing" Washington in three or four days departed for their further travel which will include visits to London, Paris, Berlin, and St. Petersburg.

Secretary Taft denies the story printed in the East recently to the effect that it is his intention to retire from the Cabinet at the close of the present session of Congress in order to be unrestricted in the prosecution of his Presidential canvass. It is the Secretary's purpose, and has been for some time, to resign if he is nominated at Chicago next June, and the propriety of such a course will commend itself to all. The Secretary has felt it to be his duty not to relinguish his portfolio because of certain legislative matters affecting his department and the Philippines which demanded his attention and in order to bring to a termination certain important questions of administration.

President Roosevelt is confident that Secretary Taft will be nominated by the Republican convention two months hence and it is understood that he is giving the succession to the War portfolio some consideration. It is not unlikely that the appointment will take the form of a personal compliment to some one of the assistant secretaries who has done well in his present position. It is strongly rumored that Assistant Secretary of State Bacon stands a better chance for this expression of regard and appreciation on the part of the President than does Assistant Secretary of War Oliver, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Winthrop, or Charles E. Magoon, provisional governor of Cuba, though each of these men has qualities which commend themselves to the President, and each has been talked of as a likely successor to Secretary Taft in July.

Senator Knox's Solid Vote.

WASHINGTON, APRIL 18—(Special)—That Senator Knox will have the 68 votes of Pennsylvania solid in the Chicago convention was shown beyond any question when the returns were in from the primaries held on April 11. Sixty-four of these delegates were selected in the districts on that date and every one of them is a strong Knox supporter. Whereever an anti-Knox candidate was running for delegate he was beaten by a big majority.

The Pennsylvania Republican state convention will be held at Harrisburg on April 29, when a resolution will be adopted pledging the support of the state to Knox and instructing the delegates-at-large to vote for him. Gov. Stuart, James Elverson, publisher of the Philadelphia Inquirer, and Col. Charles A. Rook, publisher of the Pittsburgh Dispatch, will be three of the "Big Four" from this state. The fourth man has not yet been decided upon. These men will all be enthusiastic Knox boomers who will stand by him to the end.

The report that Congressman John Dalzell had been defeated for national delegate from the Thirtieth district was found, upon a count of the ballots to be incorrect. Instead of being defeated, Mr. Dalzell led the ticket in that district. He says the entire delegation from Pennsylvania will go to Chicago with a determination to secure the nomination of Knox and that there will not be a single vote missing. Some weeks ago Mr. Dalzell made some complimentary remarks at a Yale banquet in this city, concerning Secretary Taft, which were twisted into an endorsement of Taft. Mr. Dalzell emphatically denied the statements attributed to him, but the report has been spread by the Taft supporters. Mr. Dalzell will be one of the most prominent Knox boomers at Chicago and doubtless will be the Pennsylvania member of the committee on resolutions.

Smith's Last Log Drive.

Smith's drive reached this city at about 2 o'clock Tuesday evening, and for some time worked about the island where many logs were stranded. There are in the crew about fifty men and four teams at present and the greater portion of the time all are compelled to wade in the water. Two large arks and a bateau comprise the remainder of the outfit. Four times a day the men are fed with good, wholesome food, properly prepared by a good cook and several assistants. Although those employed on the drive must work every hour of daylight and are subjected to many hardships they are paid four dollars a day in addition to board and lodging.

It appeared on Tuesday that the drive would be held up in this city but the heavy rains during the night and also to-day made a sufficient flood that they proceeded and this afternoon reached the dam. Hundreds of logs that were left high and dry by the recent flood were rolled into the river and are on their way to the Williamsport boom.—Lock Haven Express, April 15th.

Valuable Horse Dead.

Our popular drayman, Mr. Robert Clark, had the misfortune to loose a valuable horse by death, yesterday noon. While Mr. Clark was driving into the mill yard of C. B. DEATH'S DOINGS

MOWERY.

Mrs. John Mowery of Emporium, died at the home of Mrs. Billingsley on Chestnut street, yesterday morning after an operation by Dr's McGranor and Cook on Wednesday. Mrs. Mowery was brought here from Emporium the fore part of the week, too ill to be moved, in the hope that an operation by these widely-known physicians might save her life. The case was too far developed, and her constitution was so far impairad that she couldn't survive the shock and scarcely recovered from the effects of the anaesthetics. Her family were with her when the end came. The remains were taken to Emporium to-day—Port Allegany Reporter of 17th. Undertaker LaBar took charge of the remains and brought them to the family residence, Spring street, Emporium. After short religious services at this place, on Saturday, the relatives took the remains to Reynoldsville for interment. Deceased is very highly spoken of by our citizens.

Messrs John and Thos. Cummings and Jos Kinsler have contracted for cement walks on their South Broad street properties. Let others follow at once before some one is injured.

God's Children—Give Them a Chance.

How far does the influence of heredity extend when contrasted with environment? This much-mooted question is discussed by Jacob Riis in the May Delineator and his conclusion with regard to the advisability of receiving in one's household a child whose antecedents are unknown may be regarded as one solution of this problem.

"The truth is, we are children of God. That is our heredity. Backed by that, what is there of His work and His world that we can not do?

"Heredity is a factor, but not an invincible one. We can do with the soul what we did with the body. It is just a question of effort, and of the right remedy. The effort is worth making; for the civic death-rate, looking at it from that point of view, is even worse than the baby mortality. Every time a boy goes to jail a citizen dies. The remedy we know; it is the home where the law of love rules. Of all the forces in God's world it is the strongest, for it is His own law, His very being. Evil is conquered with good.

"These are my personal beliefs and convictions in this matter of heredity, sometimes preached as a doctrine of despair. I cannot see where the despair comes in. For twenty-five years as a police reporter in New York, I saw all the wickedness of depraved human nature I saw a seemingly unending succession of young rascals—so the police had stamped them and the record on the station-house blotters bore them out—going from the slums through the wicket-gate of the tombs to the prison and to the gallows, and it was a sight to discourage any one whose horizon was limited by our earth-life. The chill of it abides with me yet. But behind it all I made out also what it was that depraved their poor human nature, and that letthe responsibility lay with us who it be,—whose neglect of the neighbor that had fallen among thieves was to blame for it all. The world is no worse than we make it. We also can make it good. I should not be afraid of taking a little child into my home, whatever its ancestry, if I feltable and ready to take the responsibi ility for bringing it up, and I should not be in doubt about the result if I did; for I should know that I was doing God's work with His child, and that He would attend to the outcome."

Deceased has resided in Emporium for very many years and was respected by all who knew him. He leaves five children. The funeral will take place either Saturday or Sunday afternoon, possibly from M. Church.

Shut In.

A maiden aunt who had lost her money was provided with a home in a well-to-do family. At once she identified herself with its interests, and being a housekeeper born, was able to serve them in many ways. As occasion arose, she played the parts of cook, maid, nurse, seamstress, laundress, gardener, social secretary and night watchman. So faithful was she to such duties that she never left town, when others took vacations, and for weeks at a time did not stir beyond the gate. The family "gave her a home," as they and she said. Actually she earned her living three times over. In return for board, lodging and clothing, she accomplished tasks and bore responsibilities that few domestics would have been willing to undertake at any price. Unlike the domestics, she had no Thursday and Sunday afternoons, and her social life was limited to the every-day association with self-absorbed and indifferent relatives. The "shut-ins" who are confined by illness have a society through which they are ministered to by many gracious influences, says the Youth's Companion. The shut-ins who are too poor to maintain homes, and whose kinsfolk are too proud to let them seek the shelter of an institution, are unorganized and attract no notice; but in many cases they are equally deserving of sympathy. True, there is seldom intentional unkindness [illegible] the relatives had been unfeeling they would have sent the old aunt or uncle to the poorhouse. When we "give a home" we do a fine thing. But before we plume ourselves unduly, it is well to glance at the other side of the account, and see how much money is saved and how many wearisome little tasks are spared us by the old woman who is "able to help round," or the old man who "just does the chores."

It has been discovered by a magazine writer that an ambitious child may secure a university education and board at Valparaiso, Ind., for about 23 cents a day. The northern Indiana university has placed education on the bargain counter. The poor boy can go there and learn from the same books used in the institutions where 23 cents a day wouldn't be a start on spending money. Of course, says the Chicago Daily News, it should be understood by the ambitious that only plain table board and unadorned knowledge go for that sum. No young man need expect to be able to break a rib as a baseball hero for any amount like that and neither can a young woman blossom out as a society queen with a few studies as incidentals. As there is nothing doing but education it will never be popular with the frivolous rich.

That the preservation of the value of railroad investments is a matter of widespread interest is illustrated by the recent report of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, showing that there are more than 78,000 shareholders in the parent company and those controlled by it, and that there has been an increase of more than 16,000 stockholders in the past year.

Enlistment in the peaceful army of postal clerks has heretofore been denied to applicants under five feet four and weighing less than 125 pounds. The authorities have recently dropped the rule from the list of regulations. A physical giant is not needed to sort mail with speed and accuracy.

A new species of hazing has started. A college student in St. Louis was taken to a train by a party of fellow-students and sent home, with a warning not to come back. His offense was being a mollycoddle, which shows how the young idea has been impressed by the strenuous life.

A Wellesley college professor rebukes her pupils for wasting so much time playing bridge—a game which she designates as "a sort of mental chewing gum suited best to empty minds." Will that teacher dare to come outside and repeat her remark?

YOU CAN'T FOOL WILLIAM.

ALL ARE BENEFITED

ECONOMIC VIEW OF AMERICA'S NAVAL OUTLAY.

Money Wisely Expended by Republican Party Flows Through All Channels of Trade—Business Undertakings Built Up.

Senator Perkins of California, in a speech before the senate, took a view concerning the benefits which the country has derived since 1883 from the building of the modern navy, which, though a somewhat unusual one, is worthy of consideration. He has figured up the cost of the vessels of the new navy, built, building or authorized, as $309,359,190, and the total expenditure on account of the naval establishment since 1883 as $1,244,651,029. But according to the theory of the California senator, the country has much more to show as an offset to the nearly one and a quarter billion dollars which has been paid during the past 25 years for the construction and support of the naval outfit. He points out that the building of the navy has contributed greatly to the fostering of the country's iron and [illegible] so that from a comof a century ago the United States has risen to first rank in iron and steel manufactures. In 1880, as he shows, there were only 140,000 wage-earners engaged in the various departments of iron and steel production, and to these was paid during that year $55,000,000, while in 1905 there were 857,000 workers employed in these same industries, and these drew a total wage during the last-named year of $482,000,000.

These figures cannot fail to be impressive, and while the building of the new navy is only one of the factors that contributed to this enormous industrial expansion, there can be no question that it was an important factor. The principle involved is that money expended in the realization of one great enterprise gives a sustaining impetus to other enterprises, which in their turn build up still other business undertakings. The ancient sneer concerning "the producing of general prosperity by general taxation" does not embody the concentrated wisdom which its originator doubtless believed he had packed into the epigram. It is better that industrial activity should be inaugurated and maintained by the output of a government-collected revenue than that there should be a general industrial stagnation. In the navy the United States has an outfit which few thoughtful observers will regard as being unnecessary, considering that the building of navies is being pushed in every quarter of the globe. As Secretary Taft recently remarked, "it fills the measure of the eye," which may be translated into the common slang of the land as notifying foreign powers with trespassing proclivities to keep off our grass plots.

But while the country has the direct value that depends upon the ownership of a great navy, there has also unquestionably been a highly important indirect compensation in the fostering of affiliated industries. Not alone the thousands of workmen employed in building the warships and guns and those other thousands who dug the ores and who worked in the plate mills have been benefited, but the farmers who have found a better market demand and the tradesmen who have sold their various commodities to the shipworkers, the millmen and the miners have shared in the prosperity impulse derived from the building of the navy. The money which the government collects from the people it again distributes among the people.

Protection for American Forests.

The specific revision of the tariff which the president recommends to this congress as a forerunner and pledge of general revision by the next congress is the removal of the duty on wood pulp. This revision meets the Republican requirement that it shall be on protective lines, in that it protects the American forests. No other national asset stands in greater immediate need of protection.

BIRTHPLACE OF GREAT PARTY.

The preservation by the people of Ripon,, Wis., of the the old schoolhouse where the Republican party was born in a proceeding to be commended. Such memorials of men whose services to the country that party made possible are being carefully preserved and protected, and are regarded as sacred relics. The cabin where Lincoln was born is likely to be almost as great an object of interest in the future as is the home of Washington. The house where Grant lived in his obscurity has a special importance to patriotic Americans because he lived there. Then why not regard as a precious possession the house under whose roof the party which gave opportunity to these men had its origin?

In February, 1854, a number of citizens—Whigs, Democrats and Free Soilers—gathered in this schoolhouse at Ripon and took the first steps toward the formation of a new party. Three weeks later a local organization was effected and the name "Republican" was chosen. From that beginning the great Republican party grew—its foundation being the one overpowering impulse of opposition to

Because of the long list of statesmen and heroes who came to the front under its administration it should be commemorated — Lincoln, Stanton, Sumner, Wade, Chase, Morton, Grant, Sherman, Thomas and, later, Blaine, Harrison, Hay, McKinley, Roosevelt; because of these and a host hardly less distinctive, the party deserves tribute. Under it the country has reached a development and prosperity never dreamed before it came into existence, that never could have been reached but for what it accomplished. Its place of beginning is truly a place to be set apart and honored. Whatever its faults may have been, however it may have failed or may yet fail, its services are too great to be forgotten.

Exports of Farm Products.

How much of truth is there in the assertion that American farmers are suffering for lack of foreign markets, and hence demand a reduction of our tariff as the price of gaining a larger sale abroad for their products? Official statistics do not bear out the claim. For the seven months ending January, 1908, our exports of foodstuffs amount to $258,391,644. Of this sum breadstuffs furnished $142,380,187; meat and dairy products, $98,357,827, and cattle, hogs and sheep, $17,653,630.

This total of $258,391,644 of exported food products is the largest for any corresponding seven months heretofore known.

American farmers further contributed to the export trade in the same seven months raw cotton of the value of $316,862,105. Add this to the $258,391,644 of food products and we find that in seven months the total exports of commodities grown and produced on American farms were valued at $575,253,749.

The truth of the matter is that American farmers are selling to foreigners all that they have left after the American demand is supplied, and at exceptionally good prices, too.

To Bar "Red" Literature.

President Roosevelt has tersely defined the infamy of anarchistic literature when he says that if the law demands that such literature must be carried, then the law makes the postmaster general an accessory to murder in so far as the circulation of murderous literature directly leads to assassination.

It is intolerable that anarchists, whose doctrine is lawlessness of the most violent kind, should be permitted to use the government service to spread their propaganda and with the knowledge and consent of the government. The president is to be commended in the highest terms for asking an immediate investigation by the department of justice of the law in relation to such literature. If there is not already authority for the suppression of inflammatory papers, that fact should be determined at once so that congress may enact a special law or amendment in this session.

TROTHS MUST BE WRITTEN

After Easter Verbal Engagements Will Not Be Allowed by the Roman Catholic Church.

Cleveland, O.—After Easter morning an edict on engagements and marriage ceremonies recently issued by Pope Pius X., goes into effect and private marriage engagements will be referred to as "an incitement to sin and a cause for deception of young and inexperienced girls" of the Roman Catholic faith.

For the past four Sundays priests of the Cleveland diocese have read the pope's decree. Lectures have been given on the topic. Not only in Cleveland, but throughout America, the enclyclical becomes mandatory.

Bishop Horstmann said Wednesday: "The order was read last Sunday for the final time.

"It becomes effective on Easter Sunday morning."

The principal features of the edict are:

"Only those engagements are considered valid which have been contracted in writing, signed by both parties and by either the parish priest or the ordinary of the place or at least by two witnesses."

The marriage must be with the consent of the priest of the parish in [illegible] or both have lived for at least a month.

If neither party has a fixed abode the marriage may not be performed at all, except with permission of the priest's superior.

Workmen Find Fortune.

New York City.—Convinced that William Jaynes, who died last fall at Hempstead, L. I., had possessed a considerable amount of money, the executors of his will made a thorough search of his property and finally decided to tear down the dilapidated cottage in which the man had spent his life. After a portion of the wall had been taken down the workmen found two bags, one containing $5,000 in gold, the other $6,000 in bank notes. Later they discovered bank books which will bring the value of the estate to $25,000.

Skin Grafted on Young Child.

New York City.—Skin grafting on one of the youngest patients who have ever undergone the operation has been successfully tried on Bertha Zola, 6 months old, a grandniece of Emile Zola, the French author, at the Harlem hospital. The skin to cover the four inches of scalded surface was taken in small pieces from the child's left thigh.

TWO OCEAN LINERS MEET IN CHANNEL

THE MONTEREY AND DANISH STEAMER UNITED STATES COLLIDE IN LOWER BAY.

BOTH ARE BADLY DAMAGED

No Lives Lost and No One Injured So Far as Reported — United States Most Seriously Injured.

New York City.—Two ocean liners, the Monterey of the Ward line, bound for Havana, and the Danish steamer United States of the Scandinavian-American line, bound for Copenhagen, collided in the main ship channel in lower New York Bay on Thursday. Both vessels were damaged but no lives were lost and no one, so far as reported, was injured. The Monterey had her stern damaged and several of her bow plates loosened, but she was able to return to her dock, where her passengers disembarked. They will be forwarded to Havana by another steamer, for it is probable that she will have to go into dry dock for repairs.

The United States was more seriously damaged. A large hole was stove in her hull on the starboard side abaft the engines, and so threatening was its nature that it was deemed wise to run her aground on a bank on the channel's edge. There the steamer is resting easily tonight, the weather being clear and calm. Several wrecking tugs are standing by. Temporary repairs will be made and then the vessel will be pulled off into deep water so that she can return to the city for permanent repairs. There are 30 first-class, 90 second and about 400 steerage passengers aboard the United States. It is probable that they will remain aboard over night, for there appears to be no danger in their so doing.

There were 25 first cabin passengers, 17 intermediate and six second cabin passengers on the Monterey at the time of the accident. No great excitement occurred on either vessel, according to eye witnesses of the collision, and fearful passengers were quickly calmed by the ships' officers, who gave it out that there was no question of their safety on such a clear day and with a handy shore.

Stories as to the cause of the collision and the responsibility therefor differ. The United States, according to the accounts, steamed down the bay in the wake of the Monterey. But after going by the quarantine station the Danish steamer passed the American steamer and it was just after this that the accident occurred. [illegible] the United States had to check herself suddenly to escape running down a schooner and before the Monterey, which was close behind, could be stopped the collision occurred. Others were inclined to blame the officers of the United States for passing the Monterey in the confined limits of the ship channel and say the collision should be laid to this.

SEEK HEIRS FOR FORTUNE

Cleveland, O.—Someone in Cleveland is wanted to inherit $150,000 left by Ed McGirk, who has died in Los Angeles, Cal. He is believed to have had relatives here.

McGirk impressed his acquaintances in California with having left behind in the east a past he wished to keep shrouded in mystery.

In 20 years he accumulated his fortune. He had no family and no kin, so far as is known, west of the Mississippi river.

In conversation with his closest friend during his life in California, James Robinson, McGirk slipped a remark which made the latter believe he had come from Cleveland.

Robinson, ex-president of the Ohio association in Los Angeles, took it upon himself, after McGirk's death, to try to seek out his relatives.

He addressed a letter setting forth this information to Mayor Johnson. The mayor turned it over to Chief Kohler. Kohler is seeking for heirs to the fortune.

MONEY MARKET MUCH EASIER

BUSINESS SITUATION SHOWS NO MATERIAL CHANGE.

Weather Conditions Have Not Improved Retail Trade—Building Operations Increase.

New York City.—Dun's Review says that the business situation shows no material change; improvement in some directions being offset by more curtailment in other departments, although the easier money market is having a beneficial effect on collections. Boston reports that while there there is no falling off in commercial activity, little distinct gain is noted, and weather conditions have not facilitated retail trade. Woolen mills make better reports, but there is no improvement in cottons or footwear. Much labor and machinery continue idle in the textile industry at Philadelphia, iron and steel buying is along narrow lines, but coal is active, building operations increase, and payments are fair. Trade at Pittsburg is quiet and buying is along conservative lines. Retail merchants report that spring trade is slow and jobbers are more strict than formerly in granting credit. Manufacturing conditions show no material alteration. Wholesale orders exceed expectation at Baltimore, straw hat factories are very busy, millinery trade is active, but collections are not prompt. Louisville reports the general outlook encouraging, factories are a little more active, but collections are still slow.

Warmer weather stimulates demand at Chicago, and there is an increase in the volume of reorders from outside points involving prompt shipment, while the agricultural outlook is encouraging. Retail trade is fair at Cincinnati and more interest is shown in purchases for fall delivery, while payments are prompt.

LOVED TOO MANY WOMEN

Sensational Suicide of a Woodbury, N. J., Minister—Many Things Brought to Light After Death.

Woodbury, N. J.—This town was greatly shocked on Friday over the sensational suicide of the Rev. George W. Tomson, pastor of the Woodbury Presbyterian church, and the subsequent developments which involved the names of at least three women of this place. Tomson was found dead in the Newton hotel with a bullet in his brain.

The sensation caused by his suicide was as nothing compared with the conditions that were developed when the clergyman's friends searched for a motive for his act.

About a week ago public announcement was made of Tomson's engagement to wed Mrs. Fannie Kenworthy, a wealthy widow of this place and a member of his church. Most people who knew them were greatly pleased and there was every prospect of a happy marriage. When the tragedy came it was learned that the preacher had been paying attention to another woman, who had been living at the same hotel where Tomson resided since the death of his wife.

The young woman is alleged to have declared in a meeting of Sunday school teachers that Tomson had promised to marry her and she further declared that he would never marry Mrs. Kenworthy.

A widow also claims that the minister was attentive to her.

TWO ROBBERS' BOLD DEED

Get All the Cash in Sight in a Bank and Put Officer and Customer in Vault.

Chautauqua, Kan.—Two men, one of whom is declared to have been Henry Starr, outlaw, held up the Citizens' State bank here Friday.

C. R. Walterhouse, cashier, was quickly subdued before the robbers gathered up all the money in sight and locked Walterhouse in the vault.

Walterhouse and a customer were talking business. The robbers, both well dressed, sauntered into the bank and strolled over to the cashier's window. Both drew revolvers and forced the men into the vault, slamming the door. The robbers escaped.

It was half an hour later before the robbery was discovered.

The men were later released from their prison by President J. H. Edwards, who had been summoned. The robbers got more than $3,000.

BY DUBIOUS MEANS

BUYERS OF GOODS FORCED TO PAY EXORBITANT PRICES.

SOME COMMON GRAFTS

Alleged Wholesale Houses Growing Rich Through Trade Secured by Agents Who Work in the Rural Districts.

It is the desire to get bargains, to buy something at prices so low as will "save dealers' profits," that costs many residents of rural communities vast amounts of money. It is the seductive argument held out by certain classes of houses that seek to do business through the mails, that the local dealers are charging too much for their goods, and that it is fair for the consumers to save their dealers' profits themselves, that causes many to gain experience that is costly.

For many years past traveling agents have been numerous in agricultural sections soliciting orders for goods among the farmers. This class of agents is known as box-car men. They enter a neighborhood, and aim to sell sufficient goods so that a car load can be shipped to the nearest station and distributed. The ways of these agents are much like the "heathen Chinee"—"ways that are dark and tricks that are vain." But nevertheless, they reap rich rewards, or they would quit the business.

It should be known to every intelligent person that all classes of goods have a real value. These values are based upon conditions. The law of supply and demand has not all to do with fixing prices. To concisely sum up the factors of cost of a manufactured article there are three principal elements, viz.: The cost of the raw material; the expense of manufacture and the expense of distribution. From the producer of the raw material to the consumer, all interested in the transactions are entitled to equitable compensation. The farmer, the grower of oats sells his oats to the mill operator. The oats is manufactured into oat meal, or breakfast food. The wholesale and retail dealers are employed to distribute it. The wholesale dealer is nothing more than a warehouseman, and his compensation is for storage, and for costs of handling, and the guaranteeing to the manufacturer the cost of the goods sold. He receives only a small margin of profit. It may be said that the retailer fills a place as to the consumer as does the wholesaler to the retailer. Now it is impractical for the manufacturer to maintain stores of his own in hundreds and thousands of towns. If he could find a more economical way of distribution than the wholesaler and the retailer he would do so. But if they are cut out a more costly system of distribution must be inaugurated.

Now as to the traveling sell-direct-to-the-consumer agent. He does his business chiefly with the people who give little study to commercial matters. He represents himself as agent for a large wholesale house. He talks continually of how the consumer by buying from him can save the profits that the retailer would make. But the fact is that the expense is not eliminated. The average traveler who sells goods to the farmers receives a commission of from 25 to 40 per cent., or about 15 to 20 per cent. more than the retailer's average on such goods as he sells.

But this is not all. These men are downright dishonest as a general rule. They are a development of the proverbial lightning rod agent. They practice the same principles, only shift the kind of goods sold. In fact the majority of them represent alleged houses that exist only in name. In one western city are located a number of men who are doing business under a half dozen different names. They even haven't a warehouse. When orders are sent to them by their agents, they go to some wholesale grocer and buy the goods. Not alone this, but after they purchase what they need they adulterate the same. They buy dried fruits in bulk, the cheapest kind, and repack them in boxes supposed to weigh 25 pounds each, but in reality only weighing from 20 to 22 pounds, cases included. The spices that are bought are adulterated with ground nut shells, starch, and other material that makes up weight. The coffees are of the very cheapest and the teas the same. It is seldom that the articles sent to the purchaser are the same as the samples shown. It must be remembered that the agent is under heavy expense, four to six dollars a day for team and hotel bills, and then he receives 25 per cent. commission on what he sells. To this must be added the profits for the house, which is about another 25 per cent. All this must be made and the buyer of the goods is the one who must make good.

Lately in the western states the box-car men have adopted dubious methods of getting trade. Knowing how anxious the farmers are to secure the highest prices for products, they have been traveling around through the country pretending to be buyers of produce. They contract with the farmer for butter, eggs, poultry, etc., promising about 25 to 30 per cent. above the market price. They claim they are shipping to Arizona, New Mexico, or somewhere else, where higher prices are received. Incidentally they say that their house runs a number of large stores, and also sells to the farmers, saving them the average profits of the dealer. This is sufficient. The farmer falls into the trap, gives a good large order for supplies, and a few weeks later he finds a cheap lot of goods awaiting him C. O. D. at the local depot. He waits in vain for the crates, the egg cases, etc., promised to be sent so he can pack his eggs. If he fails to take the goods the legal end of the company comes into play, and rather than have trouble, the gullible farmer pays dearly for his supplies.

He remembers the deal. He is determined to not be again caught in a similar trap. A few months later another agent appears. He promises to sell a farm wagon, something else, perhaps, that the farmer needs, at a price so low that the farmer feels friendly. He relates how he was done up by the former agent. Then the traveler turns loose his vials of wrath. He accuses the concern represented by the first agent as a robbing outfit, and one that should be put out of business. He gets an order, but the farmer does not understand that the goods come from the same concern that the other agent represented. That only a different name was used, and the farmer is on their regular list of "suckers." The only safe way for the consumer to do is to patronize home concerns. His home merchants are interested in being fair and square. They know that they must deal honestly or they will lose customers. Their percentage of profit is far less than that made by the box-car concern. Then, again, the principle of sending money from the neighborhood where it is earned is all wrong. It is against the interests of the consumers of every class and kind. A lively home town always affords the best market. There is a saving in freight rates and commissions to middlemen.

FOR SPRING AND SUMMER TRADE

Right Kind of Advertising Brings In the Customers and Builds Up Business.

Merchants who get out and present their lines in the right way are going to capture the trade. Questions that the retailers should ask themselves, are: What am I doing in the way of advertising? Have I the right kind of space in my home paper? Have I the proper style of copy? Have I spoken to the printer about getting up the advertisement tastefully and with a border, etc., and in the right kind of type?

Spring goods should be in show windows now, and much of all that is ready for the buyers.

If the merchant uses a page or a half page in the local paper, he should have the printer lift the form and run off a thousand or more handbills that can be circulated about the country. No use in doing this unless it is the right kind of advertising. No use in just saying: "Spring goods of all kinds at Brown's." Such won't bring business. Give prices, and tell how low the prices are and how good the goods are. The advertisement should be so divided as to give a space to different kinds of goods, and some good illustrations, and some prices that will talk, so when the prospective buyers come they will not be disappointed. Merchants should see that clerks don't lie, don't misrepresent, and that they treat every caller courteously. See that deliveries of goods are promptly made, and that in each package there goes out a circular telling of other bargains. Now should be the merchants' harvest time. Everybody who has money expects to spend a goodly share of it. Don't neglect advertising right. Tell your patrons that you can secure for them any kind of goods that they want if you should happen not to have what is inquired for in stock. Your jobber will take special pains to put up a small order for you if you tell him that there is need for it, and will try to assist you all he can. Now is your harvest time and make the best of it.

HOW LOSSES OCCUR.

Investors Fail to Study Financial Matters Closely and Act Unwisely.

The great masses of people do not give sufficient study to financial matters. The farmer who is employed from early morning till late at night has no time to study into things outside of those that directly relate to his occupation. The same with the average laborer. When either have a little surplus money to invest they are easy victims of the schemers who make great promises, plausible arguments, and with a juggling of figures show how little money can be made to earn great interest. It is always safe to seek investment of surplus money in local investments. You are certain that if you use good judgment you cannot lose. When you place your money into the hands of schemers in some distant place and of whom you know little, there is a chance that you will be the loser and that chance is strong against you.

Cleanliness About Stores.

Close observers note that the most successful grocery stores are the ones which are kept in the cleanest and neatest order. There is a large class of people, and they are not the richest ones, either, who would rather have good, clean groceries, things they know are pure and kept right, and pay a good price for them, than have inferior, carelessly kept goods at a cheap price. Attractiveness about the grocery is a most important thing. It means a saving all around. In the southern country where the summer weather continues for the greater part of the year too great care cannot be exercised in the looking after stocks. A little neglect will cause losses that will prove serious. Some classes of goods if not protected from insects will be soon ruined. The grocer who would have his windows attractive will do well to avoid having stale things displayed. He should strive to make an impression that his stocks are clean and well-kept.

PUNXSUTAWNEY.—Suspected of stealing boards from the Adrian mines of the Rochester & Pittsburg Coal Co. here John Stylonski, 19 years old, was shot dead by Night Watchman George Shallenberger of the mines.

CONNELLSVILLE.—Fire, caused by a defective flue, destroyed the residence of Justice of the Peace George B. Graham, in Dunbar township. William Crossland's stable, near Moyer, was burned, causing a loss of $1,000.

CONNELLSVILLE.—With her husband serving a year in the county jail Mrs. David McMullen and her 10 children were rendered homeless by a fire which severely burned several of the babies before they were rescued.

WASHINGTON.—Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Blatt, an aged couple living on Pigeon Creek, were maltreated by three burglars. Mr. and Mrs. Blatt were dragged from their beds, bound and gagged. The house was then ransacked.

PUNXSUTAWNEY.—While kindling a fire with oil at Carrolton Mills, eight miles east of here, Mrs. Catherine Spencer's clothing ignited. A daughter entered the house as Mrs. Spencer fell fainting. She died six hours later.

MILLERSBURG.—Conductor C. W. Kiel of Sunbury was badly injured in a wreck on the Northern Central railroad near this place when two empty coal cars jumped the track in front of the McClellan coal storage yards and were thrown over a bridge that spans a wagon road.

BEAVER FALLS.—Charles Patterson, who went to Virginia to prospect for gold, has returned home. He says he found plenty of gold, but had trouble clearing titles to the properties. He says many natives, whites and negroes, wash out the pay dirt, but their methods are crude.

HARRISBURG.—Stories from Lehigh county are to the effect that fruit culture, which used to be a great business in that county, has been resumed. Some years ago the scale was so bad that orchards had to be given up, but since spraying has become so general and the results so satisfactory landowners are turning to it once more.

HARRISBURG.—Thirty-six children were marched out of the Day Nursery and Free Kindergarten without a scratch during a fire which burned the top story of the building. Twelve of the youngsters were asleep when the fire was discovered.

BUTLER.—A. G. Black of Slippery Rock township, a school teacher, farmer and Democratic politician, carried a dynamite cartridge in his pocket while blasting stumps. One hand is now minus four fingers and there is a hole in his side. Black put his hand in his pocket to take out the cartridge and it exploded.

Don't Use a Scarecrow

To Drive Away the Mail Order Wolf

You can drive him out quickly if you use the mail order houses' own weapon—advertising. Mail order concerns are spending thousands of dollars every week in order to get trade from the home merchants. Do you think for a minute they would keep it up if they didn't get the business? Don't take it for granted that every one within a radius of 25 miles knows what you have to sell, and what your prices are. Nine times out of ten your prices are lower, but the customer is influenced by the up-to-date advertising of the mail order house. Every article you advertise should be described and priced. You must tell your story in an interesting way, and when you want to reach the buyers of this community use the columns of this paper.

A MOST TOUCHING APPEAL

falls short of its desired effect if addressed to a small crowd of interested listeners. Mr. Business Man, are you wasting your ammunition on the small crowd that would trade with you anyway, or do you want to reach those who are not particularly interested in your business? If you do, make your appeal for trade to the largest and most intelligent audience in your community, the readers of this paper. They have countless wants. Your ads will be read by them, and they will become your customers. Try it and see.

Talk About Sleeping.

Women are like men when it comes to sleeping. Plenty of restful sleep makes a man strong and vigorous, and it makes a woman happy and beautiful, but both women and men can procure restful sleep by using Sexine Pills. It is well known that nervousness and overwork prevent sleep. It is equally well known that Sexine Pills produce that delightful relaxation that fold's one's tired limbs in Nature's arms while the unconscious body draws new life and vigor. Sexine Pills are the perfect tonic. They are guaranteed. They cost $1 a box; six boxes $5, with full guarantee inclosed. Address or call on R. C. Dodson, Druggist, Emporium, Pa., where they sell all the principal remedies and do not substitute.

Rival Organizations.

The man who had been keeping his seat in a Lexington avenue car, the seats of which were well occupied by women, spoke at last to the woman hanging on to a strap and who had been eying him intently for some time.

"I know I ought to get up and let you have my seat, madam," he said, "but I'm pledged against that sort of thing. I have just joined the 'Sit Still club,' an organization we have formed in Harlem, and if I should violate the solemn obligation I took when I became a member of that body I should be expelled and held up to the execration of all other members."

"That is all right, sir," replied the woman. "You mustn't mind my looking at you so hard. I am a member of the 'Stand and Stare club.'"

After which she continued to stand and stare at him in such a fierce manner that he finally got up, waved her into his seat and said, "I guess I'll resign from my club and join yours right now, madam."—New York Press.

A Throne and a North Wind.

Long had Gustavus Vasa sought to rouse his fellow countrymen, the Swedes, against the infamous Danish tyrant Christian, whose memory will always be linked with that of the "blood bath" of Stockholm. But the brave Gustavus found his compatriots cowardly and slow. An outlaw himself, no voice was raised in the assembly in his favor. He called upon the people to fight, but they sat sullen around him. Suddenly a cold wind rose from the north, and an old countryman cried, "God approves of the designs of Vasa, for a north wind is always a happy presage." These simple words acted like magic. The men flew to arms and prayed Gustavus to lead them against the Danes. In a few days he had collected an army large and brave enough to give battle to the formidable troops of the king of Denmark. Victory was theirs from the first, and the capture of Stockholm in 1523 placed the crown of Sweden upon Vasa's head.—Pearson's Weekly.

West Pointers on the Battlefield.

One thing of which all West Pointers felt proud was the brotherly love and kindness shown by both sides to fellow graduates when taken prisoners or when otherwise in distress. I have heard the story told of Fitzhugh Lee that on one occasion when scouting with a squadron of cavalry in the debatable country between Fairfax Courthouse and Alexandria he captured a picket of a similar commander under Tom Height and learned that the latter was taking breakfast in a farmhouse. Fitz went in alone, found Tom at table with his back to the door, so he was able to get up to him and slap him on the back before saying, "I think, Tom, you might have put out one picket." They took breakfast together, and then Fitz had to conduct him to the Federal lines and bring back his horse, having of course first paroled him. This was to save him from Libby prison.—General S. W. Ferguson in Metropolitan Magazine.

Champagne Corks.

Champagne corks are made of the very finest Catalonia corkwood. When the tree of that wood is planted, thirty years must elapse before it becomes fit for the first stripping of the bark, and even then the cork is of no use, being much too coarse. After eight years more a second crop arrives, but that again is of but poor quality, and eight years more, making forty-six years in all, must pass before the grower can reap any material benefit from the tree. Then, again, the greatest care is necessary for the manufacture of the best champagne corks because should they be defective in size and shape the quality of the wine will suffer. For that reason they are not made by machinery, like the ordinary cork, but are cut by hand, as finer work can be done that way.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Mazarin and His Pictures.

Perhaps no more ardent lover of pictures ever lived than Cardinal Mazarin, minister of the regency during the minority of Louis XIV. Being told that he had but two months to live, he was soon after seen in his nightcap and dressing gown, tottering along the gallery, pointing to his pictures, exclaiming: "Must I quit all these? Look at that Correggi; this 'Venus' of Titian; that incomparable 'Deluge' of Caracci! Farewell, dear pictures, that I have loved so dearly and that cost me so much!"

Exaggerated.

Among the begging letters recently received at the office of a benevolent society was one running thus:

"This unfortunate young man is the only son of a widow who died childless, and his earnings maintain his aged father and infant brothers, whose sole support he is."

The secretary of the society wrote on the margin of the epistle the following note:

"The circumstances of the case are evidently exaggerated."—London Tatler.

"Don't you ever get homesick, captain?" asked the passenger on the ocean liner.

"No; I'm never home long enough," replied the captain.—Philadelphia Press.

You people who quarrel easily, remember that no quarrel was ever really made up.—Atchison Globe.

The Ferret and the Rat.

A correspondent of a London paper, commenting on the crusade against rats in Great Britain, says: "The real remedy against rats is the ferret, not the unhealthy ferret kept by the half starved rat catcher of the agricultural village, but the strong, healthy ferret bred on the ground floor of a well ventilated, commodious dog kennel and there kept on skimmilk, table refuse and small birds. Bedded with clean wheat straw, the ferret is one of the sweetest of animals, and the expert goes into the kennels and cheers them as though in a kennel of hounds, and they crawl about him harmlessly. The young bucks will run miles across the country with the expert, just like little terriers. With this healthy life they grow too big for hunting rats in barns or other buildings, but they can settle any rat in a wheat stack if put in before the rat has made a labyrinth inside the stack. The doe ferrets will rout the buildings, and they alone should be the chief instrument in the crusade. The rat is too cunning for guns, traps and other devices."

WINCHESTER CHEMICAL CO.,
Madison Place, Philadelphia, Pa.

To-day we want to talk to you about "Catarrh cures"

During the past few months we have been publishing what some of our good friends have called "heart-to-heart talks" on patent medicines.

That name suits us all right—"heart-to-heart talks" is just what we have intended. There can't be anything more serious to a sick man or sick woman than his ailment and the remedies he or she takes to cure it.

Our talks have been "heart-to-heart." Every word we have printed has been written in absolute earnestness and sincerity, and judging from what our customers tell us, we have not been talking in vain. We are convinced that our frankness has been appreciated, and that our suggestions have been welcomed—which naturally encourages us to continue.

To-day, and perhaps for some time to come, we want to talk about that big class of remedies known generally as "catarrh cures."

Broadly speaking these are the patent medicines that have been the chief targets for the attacks of the "Ladies' Home Journal," "Collier's Weekly" and other magazines which are waging such a lively warfare against patent medicine abuses.

As we have pointed out in previous talks, it is not our business to pass judgment on the crusade of these well-known, highly-respected publications. The public alone must be the judge and jury. Our business, as we see it, is to carry in stock a complete line of patent medicines, and to sell those medicines at the lowest possible price.

We sell hundreds—yes, thousands of bottles of so-called "catarrh cures," and know nothing of their ingredients. The manufacturers advertise them, the public demands them; we order them from the manufacturers, and sell them at the lowest price. That is absolutely as far as our knowledge goes. The manufacturer keeps his formula a secret. It may be good, or it may not—we don't know, and we have no means of finding out.

Naturally, we would rather sell a remedy that we know is right—that we can back up with all our reputation for honesty and square-dealing.

And wouldn't you rather buy that kind of a remedy? Wouldn't you rather hold us responsible than to hold no one responsible? We are right here, right where you can get at us every day in the week, right where one false move on our part will bring upon us your condemnation, the loss of your friendship, your patronage, your influence. Can we afford to tell you anything that you will learn later is not absolutely true?

Are you not safer in taking our word for the merits of an article, than you are to rely on the printed statement of a patent medicine manufacturer, whom you never even saw and probably never will?

Common sense most emphatically tells you that we cannot afford to depart one hair's breadth from the rigid truth.

None of us can deny that there is such a disease known as "catarrh." Those who have it, or who have had it, know that it is one of the hardest diseases to cure.

Perhaps the worst thing about catarrh is its prevalence. Almost everyone—especially in a climate like ours—has catarrh in some form or another. That is what has made the "catarrh cure" business so profitable. There are so many thousands of cases of the disease and it is so hard to cure, that the patent medicine manufacturers have reaped a harvest in preparing remedies that appeal to this large class of sufferers.

One of the most serious things about catarrh is that it breaks down the system, so that the sufferer becomes a prey to other diseases. This fact has led the proprietors of so many "catarrh cures" to advertise their remedies as a specific for almost every disease under the sun.

We have ONE catarrh cure that we are willing to say to you; "We know this is all right. Take it home and use it with the full assurance that if it does not cure you, you can bring it back to us and we will promptly refund your money." That catarrh cure is

TRADE NAME

MUCU-TONE

There is no guess work with us on Rexall Mucu-Tone. We know what it is made of.

Not only do we know, but we will give you a copy of the formula.

There is no secret about any Rexall remedy—we make them—one thousand of us leading druggists all over America—in our great co-operative laboratories at Boston, Mass. We own the laboratories, and everything in them, and we operate them just as skillfully as our combined brains and money will let us, and just as honestly as honest men know how.

The Ingredients of Mucu-Tone

The chief ingredients of Mucu-Tone are Gentian, Cubebs, Cascara Sagrada, Glycerine, and Sarsaparilla.

Gentian is recognized in medicine as one of the greatest tonics ever discovered. It is the foundation on which Mucu-Tone is built. Gentian combines in high degree the tonic powers of all the known "bitters," with none of the disadvantages applying to them.

Cubebs have long been recognized as a specific in the treatment of all catarrhal conditions. Its action is prompt and its benefits almost invariable. In whatever part of the body the inflamed or diseased condition of the mucous membrane exists, the use of Cubebs has been recommended by the best physicians for many generations.

Cascara Sagrada is especially introduced for its necessary laxative properties.

The combination of these with Glycerine and Sarsaparilla makes Mucu-Tone a remedy that attacks catarrh from every point, gradually restores and rebuilds the diseased tissues to their former health and strength, promotes digestion and creates a normal appetite. Large trial bottle, 50c.

For Sale Only at This Store.

Sensible Dog.

"Talking about the intelligence of animals," said young Kanebiter, "why, I have a dog up at the farm that's simply wonderful."

"How so?" said Pitken.

"Why, you see, I was out shooting one day when I found a large, handsome dog lying on the ground moaning with pain. Some ruffian had shot it in the leg. I carried it home, bandaged the wound and finally cured the poor beast. Some months after that I was compelled to travel a lonely road after dark when suddenly Ponto, who accompanied me, growled warningly. The next moment a highwayman stepped out of the bushes and put a pistol to my head."

"Ah," cried the listener, "I see! Thereupon the grateful dog seized the robber by the throat."

"Not at all. The man robbed me easily enough—took watch, purse, everything."

"But Ponto?"

"Ran off as fast as his legs would carry him. That's the point—don't you see? Animal instinct—didn't want to get shot again." — Illustrated London News

"One Touch of Nature Makes the Whole World Kin."

When a rooster finds a big fat worm he calls all the hens in the farm yard to come aud share it. A similar trait of human nature is to be observed when a man discovers something exceptionally good—he wants all his friends and neighbors to share the benefits of his discovery. This is the touch of nature that makes the whole world kin. This explains why people who have been cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy who write letters to the manufacturers for publication, that others similarly ailing may also use it and obtain relief. Behind every one of these letters is a warm hearted wish of the writer to be of use to someone else. This remedy is for sale by L. Taggart.

THE CUNNING OF RATS

ROUGH ON RATS

TRADE MARK

DON'T DIE IN THE HOUSE

UNBEATABLE EXTERMINATOR.

THE OLD RELIABLE THAT NEVER FAILS

RATS are too cunning to be caught by stereotype ready-prepared-for-use doses.

Rats are smart but ROUGH ON RATS beats them.

REASONS WHY

☞ Because of the fact that ROUGH ON RATS is ALL (95%) poison and has to be mixed is the reason why it is the most effective, and so reliable, as an exterminator of Roaches, Ants and Bed Bugs as well as Rats and Mice.

☞ There is enough poison in one 15c. box of ROUGH ON RATS to kill 500 to 1,000 Rats and Mice.

☞ Fools the Rats, Mice and Bugs, but never fools the buyer.

☞ WHY? Because RATS instinctively avoid the familiar forms of ready-prepared-for-use doses. ROUGH ON RATS, being unmixed and all poison, can be disguised in many ways, thus completely outwitting them; and you are not paying 15c. an ounce for flour, paste and grease, (that can be had for 6 cents a pound), that must necessarily form the bulk of ready-prepared-for-use catch-penny devices.

☞ Being all poison, one 15c. box of ROUGH ON RATS, when mixed with something they will eat, will spread 50 to 100 little breads or cakes, that will kill five hundred or more Rats and Mice, and thousands of Roaches, Ants and Bed Bugs.

HOW TO USE IT.

☞ Always when using ROUGH ON RATS cover up or remove any other food they may be as apt to feed upon as the doses you set. Because of the well-known cunning of Rats, never place the dose you set for a rat close up to the hole where he comes out. And for the same reason every time you use ROUGH ON RATS for Rats or Mice, change the material you mix it with. If you mix it with butter or grease, and spread on bread, next time chop the powder well into bits of meat; next time mix it with leavings of fish or oysters, oatmeal porridge, mush, uncooked apples, potatoes; then use cheese, etc., changing every time to anything you may have about that Rats or Mice will eat. Then you may repeat if ever necessary.

☞ ROUGH ON RATS being a slow poison, Rats in their misery and thirst work their way out of your premises. Unequalled for extermination of Roaches, Ants and Bed Bugs. For full directions see Circulars with boxes. 15c., 25c. and 75c. (1 lb.) boxes at Druggists.

☞ Beware of imitations and substitutes; there is not and can not be an honest substitute for ROUGH ON RATS.

SERIAL STORY

LANGFORD of the THREE BARS

By KATE AND VIRGIL D. BOYLES

(Copyright by A. C. McClurg & Co., 1907.)

SYNOPSIS.

George Williston, a poor ranchman, high-minded and cultured, searches for cattle missing from his ranch—the "Lazy S." On a wooded spot in the river's bed that would have been an island had the Missouri been at high water, he discovers a band of horse thieves engaged in working over brands on cattle. He creeps near enough to note the changing of the "Three Bars" brand on one steer to the "J. R." brand. Paul Langford, the rich owner of the "Three Bars," is informed of the operations of the gang of cattle thieves—a band of outlaws headed by Jesse Black, who long have defied the law and authorities of Kemah county, South Dakota. Langford is struck with the beauty of Mary, commonly known as "Williston's little girl." Louise Dale, an expert court stenographer, who had followed her uncle, Judge Hammond Dale, from the east to the "Dakotahs," and who is living with him at Wind City, is requested by the county attorney, Richard Gordon, to come to Kemah and take testimony in the preliminary hearing of Jesse Black. Jim Munson, in waiting at the train for Louise, looks at a herd of cattle being shipped by Bill Brown and there detects old "Mag," a well known "onery" steer belonging to his employer of the "Three Bars" ranch. Munson and Louise start for Kemah. Crowds assemble in Justice James R. McAllister's court for the preliminary hearing. Jesse Black springs the first of many great surprises, waiving examination. Through Jake Sanderson, a member of the outlaw gang, he had learned that the steer "Mag" had been recovered and thus saw the uselessness of fighting against being bound over. County Attorney Gordon accompanies Louise Dale on her return to Wind City. While Williston stands in the light in his door at night a shot is fired at him. The house is attacked and a battle ensues between Williston and his daughter, on one side, and the outlaws on the other. The house is set on fire. As an outlaw raises his rifle to shoot Williston a shot from an unknown source pierces his arms and the rifle falls to the ground. Aid has come to Williston, but he and his daughter are captured and borne away by the outlaws. Jim Munson late at night heard the shots, discovered the attack on Williston's house, hurried to the Three Bars ranch and summoned Langford and his brave men to the rescue. It was Langford who fired the shot which saved Williston's life. Langford rescues Mary from her captor. Langford takes Mary to the home of Mrs. White. Her arm has been broken by a shot. She grows delirious and receives medical attention.

The long day wore along. Mother White was baking. The men would be ravenous when they came back. Many would stop there for something to eat before going on to their homes. It might be to-night, it might be to-morrow, it might not be until the day after, but whenever the time did come, knowing the men of the range country, she must have something "by her."

At last came the doctor and Gordon, driving up in the doctor's top-buggy, weather-stained, mud-bedaubed with the mud of last spring, of many springs. The doctor was a badly dressed, pleasant-eyed man, past middle age, with a fringe of gray whiskers. He was a sort of journeyman doctor, and he had drifted hither one day two summers ago from the Lake Andes country in this self-same travel-worn conveyance with its same bony sorrel. He had found good picking, he had often jovially remarked since, chewing serenely away on a brand of vile plug the while. He had elected to remain. He was part and parcel of the cattle country now. He was an established condition. People had learned to accept him as he was and be grateful. Haste was a mental and physical impossibility to him. He took his own time. All must perforce acquiesce.

"You have worked yourself into a high fever, Miss Williston, that's what you've done," he said, with professional mournfulness.

"I know it," she smiled wanly. "I couldn't help it. I'm sorry."

Gordon drew up a chair and sat down by her, saying with grave kindness, "You are fretting. We must not let you. I am going to stay with you all night and shoo the goblins away."

"You are kind," said Mary, gratefully. "May I tell you when they come? If some one speaks to me they go away."

"Indeed you may, dear child," he exclaimed, heartily. He had been half joking when he spoke of keeping things away. He now perceived that these things were more serious than he knew.

The doctor administered medicine to reduce the fever, dressed the wounded arm, with Gordon's ready assistance, and then called in Mother White to prepare the bed for his patient; but he paused nonplussed before the weight of entreaty in Mary's eyes and voice.

"Please don't," she cried out, in actual terror. "Oh, Mr. Gordon, don't let him! I see such awful things when I lie down. Please! Please! And Mr. Langford said I might sit up till he came. Mr. Gordon, you will not let him put me to bed, will you?"

"I think it would be better to let her have her way, Lockhart," said Gordon in a low voice.

"Maybe it would, Dick," said the doctor, with susprising meekness.

"I'll stay all night and I'll take good care of her, Lockhart. There's Mother White beckoning to supper. You'll eat before you go? No, I won't take any supper now, thank you, mother, I will stay with Mary."

And he did stay with her all through the long watches of that long night. He never closed his eyes in sleep. Sometimes Mary would drop off into uneasy slumber—always of short duration. When she awakened suddenly in wide-eyed fright, he soothed her with all tenderness. Sometimes when he thought she was sleeping, she would clutch his arm desperately and cry out that there was some one behind the big cottonwood. Again it would be to ask him in a terrified whisper if he did not hear hoof-beats, galloping, galloping, galloping, and begged him to listen. He could always quiet her, and she tried hard to keep from wandering; but after a short, broken rest, she would cry out again in endless repetition of the terrors of that awful night.

Mrs. White and several of her small progeny breathed loudly from an adjoining room. A lamp burned dimly on the table. It grew late—12 o'clock and after. At last she rested. She passed from light, broken slumber to deep sleep without crying out and thus awakening herself. Gordon was tired and sad. Now that the flush of fever was gone, he saw how white and miserable she really looked. The circles under her eyes were so dark they were like bruises. The mantle of his misfortune was spreading to bring others besides himself into its somber folds.

The men were coming back. But they were coming quietly, in grim silence. He dared not awaken Mary for the news he knew they must carry. He stepped noiselessly to the door to warn them to a yet greater stillness and met Langford on the threshold.

The two surveyed each other gravely with clasped hands.

"You tell her, Dick. I—I can't," said Langford. His big shoulders drooped as under a heavy burden.

"Must I?" asked Gordon.

"Dick, I—I can't," said Langford, brokenly. "Don't you see?—if I had been just a minute sooner—and I promised."

"Yes, I see, Paul," said Gordon, quietly. "I will tell her."

"You need not," said a sweet clear voice from across the room. "I know. I heard. I think I knew all the time—but you were all so good to make me hope. Don't worry about me any more, dear friends. I am all right now. It is much better to know. I hope they didn't hang him. You think they shot him, don't you?"

"Little girl, little girl," cried Langford, on his knees beside her, "it is not that! It is only that we have not found him. But no news is good news. That we have found no trace proves that they have to guard him well because he is alive. We are going on a new track to-morrow. Believe me, little girl, and go to bed now, won't you, and rest?"

"Yes," she said, wearily, as one in whom no hope was left, "I will go. I will mind—the boss."

As he laid her gently on the bed, while Mrs. White, aroused from sleep, fluttered aimlessly and drowsily about, he whispered, his breath carressing her cheek:

"You will go to sleep right away, won't you?"

"I will try. You are the boss."

CHAPTER XII.

Waiting.

The man found dead the night the Lazy S was burned out was not easily identified. He was a half-breed, but half-breeds were many west of the river, and the places where they laid their heads at night were as shifting as the sands of that rapid, ominous, changing stream of theirs, which ever cut them off from the world of their fathers and kept them bound, but restless, chafing, in that same land where their mothers had stared stolidly at a strange little boatload tugging up the river that was the forerunner of the ultimate destiny of this broad northwest country, but which brought inincidentally—as do all big destinies in the great scheme bring sorrow to some one—wrong, misunderstanding, forgetfulness, to a once proud, free people now in subjection.

At last the authorities found trace of him far away at Standing Rock, through the agent there, who knew him as of an ugly reputation—a dissipated, roving profligate, who had long since squandered his government patrimony. He had been mixed up in sundry bad affairs in the past, and had been an inveterate gambler. So much only were the Kemah county authorities able to uncover of the wayward earthly career of the dead man. Of his haunts and cronies of the period immediately preceding his death, the agent could tell nothing. He had not been seen at the agency for nearly a year. The reprobate band had covered its tracks well. There was nothing to do but lay the dead body away and shovel oblivion over its secret.

In the early morning after the return of the men from their unsuccessful man hunt, Gordon, gray and haggard from loss of sleep and from hard thought, stepped out into the kitchen to stretch his cramped limbs. He stumbled over the figure of Langford prone upon the floor, dead asleep in utter exhaustion. He smiled understandingly and opened the outerdoor quietly, hoping he had not aroused the wornout boss. The air was fresh and cool, with a hint of autumn sharpness, and a premature Indian summer haze, that softened the gauntness of the landscape, and made the distances blue and rest-giving. He felt the need of invigoration after his night's virgil, and struck off down the road with long strides, in pleasant anticipation of a coming appetite for breakfast.

Thus it was that Langford, struggling to a sitting posture, rubbing his heavy eyes with a dim consciousness that he had been disturbed, and wondering drowsily why he was so stupid, felt something seeping through his senses that told him he did not do well to sleep. So he decided he would take a plunge into the cold artesian pond, and with such drastic measures banish once and for all the elusive yet all-pervading cobwebs which clung to him. Rising to his feet with unusual awkwardness, he looked with scorn upon the bare floor and accused it blindly and bitterly as the direct cause of the strange soreness that beset his whole anatomy. The lay of the floor had changed in a night. Where was he? He glanced helplessly about. Then he knew.

Thus it was, that when Mary languidly opened her eyes a little later it was the boss who sat beside her and smiled reassuringly.

"You have not slept a wink," she creid, accusingly.

"Indeed I have," he said. "Three whole hours, I feel tip-top."

"You are—fibbing," she said. "Your eyes look so tired, and your face is all worn."

His heart leaped with the joy of her solicitude.

"You are wrong," he laughed, teasingly. "I slept on the floor; and a good bed it was, too. No, Miss Williston, I am not 'all in' yet, by any means."

In his new consciousness, a new formality crept into his way of addressing her. She did not seem to notice it.

"Forgive me for forgetting, last night," she said, earnestly. "I was very selfish. I forgot that you had not slept for nearly two days and were riding all the while in—our behalf. I forgot. I was tired, and I went to sleep. I want you to forgive me. I want you to believe that I do appreciate what you have done. My father——"

"Don't, don't, little girl," cried Langford, forgetting his new awe of her maidenhood in his pity for the stricken child.

"My father," she went on steadily, "would thank you if he were here. I thank you, too, even if I did forget to think whether or no you and all the men had any sleep or anything to eat last night. Will you try to believe that I did not forget wittingly? I was so tired."

When Langford answered her, which was not immediately, his face was white and he spoke quietly with a touch of injured pride.

"If you want to hurt us, Miss Williston, that is the way to talk. We cowmen do not do things for thanks."

She looked at him wonderingly a moment, then said, simply, "Forgive me," but her lips were trembling and she turned to the wall to hide the tears that would come. After all, she was only a woman—with nerves—and the reaction had come.

The sheriff and his party of deputies made a diligent search for Williston that day and for many days to come. It was of no avail. He had disappeared, and all trace with him, as completely as if he had been spirited away in the night to another world—body and soul. That the soul of him had really gone to another world came to be generally believed—Mary held no hope after the return of the first expedition; but why could they find no trace of his body? Where was it? Where had it found a resting place? Was it possible for a man, quick or dead, even west of the river in an early day of its civilization when the law had a winking eye, to fall away from his wonted haunts in a night and leave no print, neither a bone nor a rag nor a memory, to give mute witness that this way he passed, that way he rested a bit, here he took horse, there he slept, with this man he had converse, that man saw his still body borne hence? Could such a thing be? It seemed so.

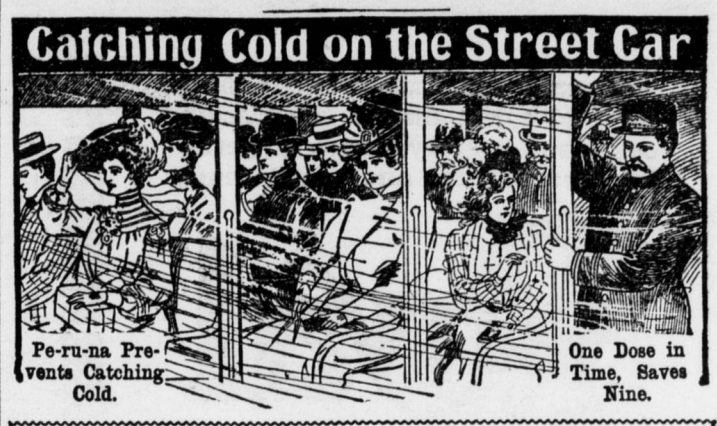
Trend of Civilization.

I had thought that civilization meant the attainment of peace and order and freedom, of good will between man and man, of the love of truth, and the hatred of injustice, and by consequence the attainment of the good life which these things breed, a life free from craven fear, but full of incident; that was what I thought it meant, not more stuffed chairs and more cushions, and more carpets and gas, and more dainty meat and drink—and therewithal more and sharper difference between class and class.—William Morris.

NO ONE CAN ALWAYS AVOID

Catching Cold on the Street Car



Pe-ru-na Prevents Catching Cold.

One Dose in Time, Saves Nine.

Many people persist in riding on the street cars, insufficiently protected by clothing.

They start out perhaps in the heat of the day and do not feel the need of wraps.

The rapid moving of the car cools the body unduly. When they board the car perhaps they are slightly perspiring. When the body is in this condition it is easily chilled. This is especially true when a person is sitting.

Beginning a street car ride in the middle of the day and ending it in the evening almost invariably requires extra wraps, but people do not observe these precautions, hence they catch cold.

Colds are very frequent in the Spring on this account, and as the Summer advances, they do not decrease. During the Spring months, no one should think of riding on the car without being provided with a wrap.

A cold caught in the Spring is liable to last through the entire Summer. Great caution should be observed at this season against exposure to cold. During the first few pleasant days of Spring, the liability of catching cold is great.

No wonder so many people acquire muscular rheumatism and catarrhal diseases during this season.

However, in spite of the greatest precautions, colds will be caught.

At the appearance of the first symptom, Peruna should be taken according to directions on the bottle, and continued until every symptom disappears.

Do not put it off. Do not waste time by taking other remedies. Begin at once to take Peruna and continue taking it until you are positive that the cold has entirely disappeared. This may save you a long and perhaps serious illness later on.

Bad Effects From Cold.

Mr. M. J. Deutsch, Secretary Building Material Trades Council, 151 Washington St., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I have found your medicine to be unusually efficacious in getting rid of bad effects from cold, and more especially in driving away all symptoms of catarrh, with which I am frequently troubled.

"The relief Peruna gives in catarrhal troubles alone is well worth the price per bottle. I have used the remedy for several years now."

Spells of Coughing.

Mrs. C. E. Long, writes from Atwood, Colorado, as follows:

"When I wrote you for advice my little three-year-old girl had a cough that had been troubling her for four months. She took cold easily, and would wheeze and have spells of coughing that would sometimes last for a half hour.

"Now we can never thank you enough for the change you have made in our little one's health. Before she began taking your Peruna she suffered everything in the way of cough, colds and croup, but now she has taken not quite a bottle of Peruna, and is well and strong as she has ever been in her life."

Pe-ru-na for Colds.

Mr. James Morrison, 68 East 16th St., Paterson, N. J., writes:

"I have given Peruna a fair trial, and I find it to be just what you claim it to be. I cannot praise it too highly. I have used two bottles in my family for colds, and everything imaginable. I can safely say that your medicine is the best I have ever used."

THE MEAN MAN.

"I believe," his wife angrily declared, "that if I were dead you would be married again inside of a year."

"Oh, no," the mean man replied, "you are mistaken. Try me and I'll prove it."

GIRL WAS DELIRIOUS

With Fearful Eczema—Pain, Heat, and Tingling Were Excruciating—Cuticura Acted Like Magic.

"An eruption broke out on my daughter's chest. I took her to a doctor, and he pronounced it to be eczema of a very bad form. He treated her, but the disease spread to her back, and then the whole of her head was affected, and all her hair had to be cut off. The pain she suffered was excruciating, and with that and the heat and tingling her life was almost unbearable. Occasionally she was delirious and she did not have a proper hour's sleep for many nights. The second doctor we tried afforded her just as little relief as the first. Then I purchased Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills, and before the Ointment was three-quarters finished every trace of the disease was gone. It really seemed like magic. Mrs. T. W. Hyde, Brentwood, Essex, England, Mar. 8, 1907."

Recommended His Wife.

Irvin Cobb, humorist of New York, was recommended to a lecture management. The latter sought an introduction through a friend, Mr. McVeigh.

"Come here, Irvin, I want you to meet a friend of mine," said McVeigh. After a few minutes' conversation, the lecture man broached the subject of lecturing as follows:

"I was just wondering, Mr. Cobb, what you would think of a proposition to do some lecture work next season?"

Cobb looked at his questioner for just a moment in blank amazement. Evidently such a thought had never entered his head before. Then reaching out his hand confidentially, he said:

"I've got it. My wife will do it. She is the best one I know."—Lyceum and Talent.

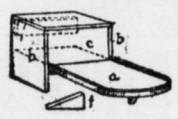
THE DAIRY

CONVENIENT MILKING STOOL.

Another Type Which Combines Comfort and Utility.

Take a board, a, 20 inches long and ten inches wide and to this nail two boards, b b, 10x6 inches to serve as legs, so the ends are about four inches below the board, a. Nail on the seat and the board, c, which forms the front. Nail on a board, e, 3x10 inches under d, to serve as a handle.



Round off the corners of a, explains Farm and Home, and nail on around the edge a strip of barrel hoop so that it projects about one-half inch above to hold the pail from sliding off. Under a nail a triangular board to serve as a third leg.

WATERING COWS.

Care in the Quality of Water Provided Is Important.

The best arrangements for the watering of dairy cows I consider to be individual basins between the cows in the winter time and running water in the summer time. In the winter, says the writer in Farmers' Review, I water my cows out of doors, but that is because I do as I have to do and not as I want to do. Most of the farmers about here water their cows out of doors.

Where water is supplied at all in the barns, the force that drives the water comes from tanks of windmills or from hydraulic rams. The troughs of cement seen in some barns, and which run in front of all the cows, I believe to be all right, but I prefer the individual basins.

Most of the cows about here get their water at the temperature it happens to be when it comes from the well, but in the winter time it would pay to warm it. I am satisfied that a cow that is given water with the chill taken off will drink more of it and will consequently give more milk than she otherwise would.

DAIRY NOTES.

The growing stock is carrying your pocketbook.

It's intelligence, not luck, that counts in the dairy.

The cow with the small udder and the big appetite seldom pays.

It's the happy and contented cow that makes the farmer happy and contented.

The more we know about the cow, the more probable will be our success in handling her.

Linseed meal and bran are two important elements in the ration. They are expensive but they pay.

The manure pile on the dairy farm may not represent half the profits, but it is too valuable to be ignored.

Beans for Green Manure.

We know of one farmer that planted beans too early, and the late frost caught them, killing the whole crop. He planted again, but this time so thick that the pods did not form till an early fall frost caught them, and so the whole crop was lost. But the growth of the beans had been a very rank one, and the weeds had been kept from growing. The mass of rank herbage was plowed under and the land left to be planted the next year. The plowed-under beans proved to be great enrichers of the soil, for they added to it a very large quantity of nitrogen, in addition to the humus. This in its decay created acids which set loose more plant food in the soil. So the bean crop was not a total loss, after all.

Cooling the Milk.

A speaker at a Wisconsin institute said: The main thing is to cool the milk quickly to a temperature of 50 degrees or less, and it would pay the dairyman to provide ice for this purpose. In the absence of ice an abundance of well water will enable the patron to quickly cool the milk to a temperature of 50 degrees or below. If the cans are placed in cold water and the milk is stirred until cooled to the temperature of the water, which is usually about 50 degrees, well and good; but the average milker, after performing a long day's work in the field and then another half day's work, called for variety's sake chores, will not stand over the milk long enough to accomplish this

The Dairy House.

A good large well or dairy house is very necessary to the equipment of a first-class dairy, but its use should be confined to the uses of the dairy. Its conversion into a sort of a store room or receptacle for vegetables, tools, worn out harnesses, etc., does not tend to produce a fine flavored milk or stimulate the dairy appetite of the occasional visitor.

Kerosene Emulsion.

One-half pound soap, one gallon water, two gallons kerosene. Dissolve the soap in water over fire. Remove from fire and add kerosene. Stir violently. Use one part of emulsion to 15 parts water.

Burn the Rubbish.

Old rubbish is more valuable in the form of ashes to the gardener than any other way. Wood ashes make excellent garden fertilizer if applied properly.

SPRING KIDNEY TROUBLE.

Vividly Described by One Who Has Suffered from It.

Mrs. H. Mutzabaugh, of Duncannon, Pa., says: "I was sick and miserable all last Spring and as I did not know what was the matter I kept going down and down until I was a physical wreck. I had smothering spells, flashes of heat over the kidneys and pain in passing the kidney secretions, which contained sediment. My husband urged me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and at last I did so. They did me much good, and I used in all eight boxes which restored me to perfect health."

STUDY NOT A NECESSITY.

End and Aim of Woman's Life, as Understood by Rosie's Mother.

In one of the Philadelphia public schools is a little girl pupil whose ancestors and coreligionists have ever held that the principal end and aim of the life of a woman is marriage. This little girl is well up in most of her studies, but she has an inveterate dislike of geography and it seems impossible to teach the study to her. The other day her teacher, made impatient by her seeming unwillingness to learn her geography lesson, sent to Rosie's mother a note requesting her to see that the girl studied her lesson. The next day showed no improvement, however, and the teacher asked Rosie whether she had delivered the note.

"Yes, ma'am," was the reply.

"And did your mother read the note, Rosie," said the teacher.

"Yes, ma'm."

"What did she say?"

"My mother said that she didn't know geography, an' she got married, an' my aunt didn't know geography, an' she got married, an' you know geography, an' you didn't get married."

An Undesirable Article.

When Mr. B. went to call upon some friends the other afternoon, he was on his way out of town and so had his traveling bag with him. This he placed in a corner, and when he rose to leave he overlooked it. His hostess happened to notice it before he had reached the door, and called to her little daughter:

"Marie, run after Mr. B. and tell him he has left his grip here!"

The little one gave her mother one swift glance of surprise, but flew dutifully to obey orders.

"Oh, Mr. B.," they heard her say, "mother says you have forgotten to take your grip with you." Then she added, quickly, in a tone of polite apology: "You see, most all of us have had it this winter, and we'd rather not have any more!"

A Counter Stroke.

A stylishly-dressed woman entered a Chinese laundry and paid for a laundered shirt.

"Why do you wear those 'rats,' I think you call them, in your hair?" inquired the Chinaman, who had an inquisitive turn of mind.

"Tush, Mr. John," replied his customer. "I always thought it was Chinese etiquette not to talk about the things they like best."

The Oriental blinked his eyes as the lady passed out.

LOST $300.

Buying Medicine When Right Food Was Needed.

Money spent for "tonics" and "bracers" to relieve indigestion, while the poor old stomach is loaded with pastry and pork, is worse than losing a pocketbook containing the money.

If the money only is lost it's bad enough, but with lost health from wrong eating, it is hard to make the money back.

A Mich. young lady lost money on drugs but is thankful she found a way to get back her health by proper food. She writes:

"I had been a victim of nervous dyspepsia for six years and spent three hundred dollars for treatment in the attempt to get well. None of it did me any good.

"Finally I tried Grape-Nuts food, and the results were such that, if it cost a dollar a package, I would not be without it. My trouble had been caused by eating rich food such as pastry and pork.

"The most wonderful thing that ever happened to me, I am sure, was the change in my condition after I began to eat Grape-Nuts. I began to improve at once and the first week gained four pounds.

"I feel that I cannot express myself in terms that are worthy of the benefit Grape-Nuts has brought to me, and you are perfectly free to publish this letter if it will send some poor sufferer relief, such as has come to me."

NEW ARRIVALS IN CANADA NEARLY 300,000 IN 1907.

ABOUT SIXTY THOUSAND FROM THE UNITED STATES.

Now that it is known that in the year just closed nearly sixty thousand from the United States declared their intention of making their homes in Canada, it might not be out of place to search for some reasons that would bring this about. These people are but following the example of the fifty-five or sixty thousand who did the same thing the year previous, and an almost equal number who the year before that but followed the example of the thousands of the year preceding. An excellent climate, certain and positive crops of grain of all kinds, good markets for their produce, land—and good land, too— at low prices, easy terms of payment, (not forgetting the 160 acres of land given free by the Government, particulars of which the Canadian Government Agent whose name appears elsewhere will tell you about) and then the splendid social conditions. The situation is pretty well sized up by a writer in one of the magazines. Quoting from this article, we find this: "Those of us who made good in the States," interjected another settler as if to continue the story of his neighbor, "have had it easy from the start; a little money is a mighty good thing on coming into a new country. But those who make an entry, or even buy lands at low rates, are able to square things in two or three seasons' crops. There are hardships in building shanties, and then with increasing prosperity getting things into shape for better homes. But affairs go much as in the States. We have the largest liberty in the world; there is more home rule in the Provinces than in the several states of the Republic. Taxes are light and with only a few million people west of Winnipeg we don't get in each other's way. One's friends over the line probably thought we would not live through the winter; and while it is cold, real cold, it is free from the moisture experienced in the east. Schools are good as encouraged by the Government; the enterprising American promoter and Yankee drummer see to it that we take notice of the latest improvements and best agricultural machinery. Altogether we are as near to affairs as we would be on our own farms in the States. Winnipeg bears the same relation to us as Chicago did at home; and Edmonton with the surrounding region advances as Omaha did in the days when we were as young as the boys yonder. We get together much as they did in the granges over the border; the government has established experimental schools of agriculture, and progress in every line is stimulated. This is a great region for grazing," we hear the Calgary citizen continuing, "and then with building elevators of wheat at one dollar a bushel, many of us find time to go over to the live stock exhibition in Chicago or visit old friends during the course of the winter. Every man is taken for what he is worth or for what he can raise; and in this good air and on this fertile soil we intend to show our old friends that we are made of the right stuff—that we are chips of the old block who built up the American West."

Hope.

Walter Damrosch tells of a matron in Chicago who, in company with her young nephew, was attending a musical entertainment.

The selections were apparently entirely unfamiliar to the youth; but when the "Wedding March" of Mendelssohn was begun he began to evince more interst.

"That sounds familiar," he said. "I'm not strong on these classical pieces, but that's a good one. What is it?"

"That," gravely explained the matron, "is the 'Maiden's Prayer.'"—Harper's Weekly.

MACHINE-GROUND PAINT.

Occasionally one hears the "hand mixed" paint of the painter slightingly spoken of as "unscientific" and "not thoroughly mixed." The facts are all on the side of the painter and his hand-prepared paint.

It is the most "scientific" paint there is, because it is made on the spot to suit the particular purpose for which it is to be used. It is as scientific as a good doctor's prescription. If the painter did not mix it thus it would be as unscientific as a patent medicine. Moreover, the paint which a good painter turns out is made of genuine white lead and pure linseed oil. If he does not mix it himself he is not sure what is in it, and consequently his client cannot be sure.

As for not being thoroughly mixed by machinery, that is simply a misstatement. White Lead as made by National Lead Company is thoroughly incorporated with 7 or 8 per cent. of pure Linseed oil in the factory, making a paste. This paste need only be thinned with additional linseed oil to make it ready for the brush.

The thorough incorporation of pigment and oil has already been accomplished before the painter gets it.

To know how to tell pure white lead is a great advantage to both painter and house-owner. National Lead Company will send a tester free to anyone interested. Address the company at Woodbridge Building, New York, N. Y.

F. C. R. Rice, of Chicago, Ill., General Inspector of Transportation of the C. B. & Q. R. R., visited the operators in this place Monday, examining the new lock and block system which has been in operation in this place for some time, with the intention of placing this system on their road, and started for New York on the Erie mail east.

John Schwab, proprietor of Schwab Bro's store, after having finished a successful term of school at Sinnamahoning, is now arranging his goods, and is devoting his entire time and services in the display of new spring and summer goods, preparing for the spring trade, which promises to be large.

Ilo Barger, Geo. Hess and Wm. Wertz, of Calder, were initiated into the mysteries of the L. C, this week. Edward McCracken brought them down in his airship, but says the next meeting they will have to walk, as on their way back, two of the party commenced to discuss several things which happened in the meeting and they started to scrap, and nearly upset the whole bunch.

Quite an exciting time occurred Monday evening, when the L. C., went to the "Reehive" to hold their meeting. The first member arriving, was promptly thrown out by President Krise, who claimed the rent was not paid and no more meetings could be held there until it was paid. After a short discussion, a collection was taken up, and the members were allowed the use of their rooms. Frank Sullivan returned from Cleveland with a lengthy report. Signal repairman A. A. Smith received his first degree. John Devling and Everet Barr, of Sterling Run, handed their names in to be acted upon at the next meeting. Thos. Furgesen, mine foreman, received his second degree. Owing to report being lengthy, do not have space for it at this time.

SIZERVILLE.

There are an average of 50 fishermen patrolling our streams daily.

Dr. W. H. Mitchell, Dentist, Emporium, Pa. Over Vogt's shoe store.

A. Market's new dwelling is rapidly nearing completion; Messrs. Lewis & Co., are hustlers in their line. Adam will have a model residence when completed, far superior to the one recently burned.

Hon. F. D. Councilman has his modern bath outfit connected up and is watching the halt and lame plunge beneath the flood of hot and cold water. County Treasurer Chas. J. Howard was the first to be introduced to the new apparatus.

John Abbot now occupies the flat recently vacated by Wm. Donnehu. He found many rare relics left behind and removed by the scoop shovel full. Most of the relics were of glass capacity of one quart.

John Kelly is moving his shingle machinery to Sterling Run. We hear many expressions of regret as to his departure, but our loss is Sterling's gain. We hope the community at large will encourage him in his enterprise.

Mrs. S. N. DeCoursey has disposed of her house and lot and moved to Port Allegany. We expect to see the property greatly improved in the near future.

Some of the candidates not receiving the vote expected are unable to disguise their feelings, who before the primaries were so confident of a walk away. Some declare they will now desert the Democratic party and seek shelter under the Grand Old Party of which honest Abe Lincoln belonged.

Now as to the new Board of Trade recently organized in Emporium. It's the duty of every farmer and laboring man to take an interest in this important move. Three years hence the timber supply will be exhausted in this and nearby counties and the question is what employment will take the lumber operations place? The advantages of railroad facilities accorded our ideal county seat, is inviting to industry locaters. With the excellent iron works right at the door, as iron pipe manufactures so much demand. The automobile which has come to stay. A shoe factory, to illustrate. Watsontown, Pa., population not more than twice that of Sizerville, has one where the dividends are of large proportions each year. Could industries be secured as mentioned a connecting link of trolley could be added to tap the B. & S. R. R., at Driftwood, which would cause competition in rates, trolley lines now being common carriers by law. We hope to see every citizen make a libera! donation to the board of trade and encourage them in this great and important question confronting the public. Let us all be up and doing.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

Bulletin.

THE FORTY BEACHES OF NEW JERSEY

The one hundred and twenty-five odd miles along the New Jersey coast line from Long Branch to Cape May presents the greatest pleasuring section in the United States

Upon the bluffs of the northern end and the gently shelving sands of the southern end are located forty resorts which entertain during the spring and summer season millions of pleasure seekers.

At no time in the year is this section more delightful than during the spring and early summer months. One who has not seen them at this season would marvel at their delights. The great pine belt, which extends through the center of New Jersey, fills the air with life-giving ozone, which combined with the salty tang of the sea and the open air exercise possible at all times, is exhilarating and tonic to the highest degree.

Long Branch, with its beautiful cottage-neighbors, West End, Hollywood, and Elberon; Deal and Allenhurst, largely devoted to cottage life; Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, attracting thousands yearly; Avon, Belmar, Como, Spring Lake, and Sea Girt, are a galaxy of attractive places upon the bluffs where "the country meets the sea."

Then the Barnegat Bay section, where Point Pleasant, Sea Side Park, Island Heights, Barnegat City, and Beach Haven, with other smaller places nearby, welcome the summer sojourner.

Atlantic City, with its seven miles of beach and drives, and its charming suburbs, leads the island resorts, separated from the main land by the great salt marshes.

Ocean City, Sea Isle City, Avalon, and Stone Harbor; Anglesea, Wildwood, Holly Beach, and Wildwood Crest also have a large summer population.

And Cape May, with its new million dollar hotel and its wonderful improvements makes a fitting climax and holds a high place among the forty beaches.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is the direct route to all of these resorts from all sections of the country. Its splendid train service makes each of them neighbor to all the rest and to the world at large.
